Speakers:

William Armaline, Ph.D.

Associate Professor, San Jose State University

Dr. William Armaline is the Director of the San Jose State University Human Rights Program and is an Associate Professor in the Department of Justice Studies. Formally trained in sociology, education, and human rights, Dr. Armaline is an interdisciplinary scholar whose interests, applied work, and scholarly publications address social problems as they relate to political economy, environmental sustainability, critical race theory and anti-racist action, critical pedagogy and transformative education, inequality and youth, mass incarceration, and drug policy reform. He received his Ph.D., Sociology from the University of Connecticut.

John Keen

Mountain View Resident

John Keen moved from Massachusetts to Mountain View in 1994 and has remained a resident since then, working at several technology companies. He appreciates the many positive attributes that make Mountain View a good place to live: numerous bicycle lanes and trails, abundant open space and parks, a safe community, an excellent public library, a thriving downtown, a culturally diverse population, and many others.

Ayinde Rudolph, Ed.D

Superintendent, Mountain View Whisman School District

Dr. Rudolph comes to Mountain View from the Buffalo Promise Neighborhood, where he served as Associate Director of School Transformation. He received his Doctorate in Education in Leadership, Policy and Organizations from Vanderbilt University. He also holds an Educational Specialist degree in Educational Leadership and Administration as well as a Master of Education in Secondary Education from George Washington University.

Liron Shapira

Co-Founder and Chief Science Officer, Quixey

Liron Shapira is an entrepreneur and lifelong Bay Area resident. In 2009, he cofounded Quixey, a mobile search and advertising company in the heart of downtown Mountain View. Quixey has since grown to 300 employees, 4 international offices, and over $130m raised. He is an advisor to the Center for Applied Rationality and the Machine Intelligence Research Institute both based in Berkeley and an active contributor to Fresh Lifelines for Youth based in San Jose. He received a Bachelor of Arts in Computer Science from University of California at Berkeley.
